Community honors military men and women -- Navy receives concert tickets from city of Virginia Beach.

U.S. military members the world over will tell you Hampton Roads is one of the best places to live and work. The goodwill and support from the community continues to be a major reason service members and their families request to serve at the region's many military activities.

This morning, at the Navy's mid-Atlantic region headquarters, Virginia Beach Mayor Meyera Oberndorf presented Rear Admiral Steve Turcotte with several thousand concert tickets.

The tickets are for the Military Appreciation Night, July 3 performance by recording artists Hall & Oates, Michael McDonald and the Average White Band at the Verizon Wireless Amphitheater in Virginia Beach. Tickets will be available to active duty members of every branch of service beginning this week at most area military installations.

Active duty service men and women may obtain two tickets, while supplies last, by presenting their active duty ID card at the following locations.
